She professed religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1882. Though sick for more than a year, she was cheerful and free from any alarm at the approach of death. In perfect composure and triumph she passed away from earth. While dying she calmly asked the family to meet her in Heaven. She has been cut off in the bloom.

Walks o'er the earth with silent tread;
And bears our best loved away,
And then we call them dead.
